

G30 NAGOYA UNIVERSITY

Comparative Studies of Language and Culture

The Global 30 Graduate Program in Comparative Studies in Language and Culture (CLC) is an inter-disciplinary graduate program encompassing linguistics, Japanese studies and the comparative humanities, with a curriculum taught entirely in English. The courses comprising this program together offer students a wide-ranging and interdisciplinary introduction to various aspects of Japanese culture including literature, philosophy, the visual arts, film, media, subculture and sexuality – all considered from a truly comparative perspective.

Master's Course

There are many exciting courses to choose from, including the following:

Japanese Psycholinguistics
 Introduction to Sociolinguistics
 Linguistic Typology and the Japanese Language
 A Comparative Approach to Media Discourse
 Second Language Development
 Second Language Acquisition

Critical Theory
 A Comparative History of Broadcasting
 Cultural and Intellectual History of Japan (I-IV)
 Literary Modernism and the Avant-Garde (I-II)
 Comparative Literature
 Word and Image (I-IV)

